THE MIXED
CONTAINER

Ten products. One container.
One planned order.

How mixed-container consolidation brings China-direct pricing within reach at the volumes a regional distributor, blender, or mud company actually buys.

THE PROBLEM WITH GOING DIRECT YOURSELF

Buying from China normally means a full container per product, a factory relationship per product, and your own quality checking. For ten SKUs that is ten negotiations, ten separate inspections to manage, and more tonnage per product than most regional buyers turn over.

HOW THE MIXED CONTAINER WORKS

01
List
Send the SKUs you buy today, with specifications or TDS — any format, including a WhatsApp forward.

02
Consolidate
We combine your products — starting from one pallet per SKU — into one container: PAC, xanthan, starch, PHPA, OBM additives, and more.

03
Verify
COA per batch per product against your specification; pre-shipment inspection; one complete document set.

04
Repeat
Planned orders on a six-to-eight-week cycle — transit time is planned in from the start, not discovered late.

What this is not: we are not a local same-day warehouse — we do not hold stock near you, and we will not pretend to. Keep the local emergency shelf; move the planned volume.

HOW YOU JUDGE IT

We quote line-by-line against what you pay today, so the comparison is per product, on your own numbers. Start with a single mixed trial container and qualify on your own bench — or on your customers' jobs.
